Article Submission Parameters

We appreciate content related to the subject matter for physicians and by physicians. We welcome the submission of content, but we reserve the right to publish content as we see fit. The Indianapolis Medical Society Bulletin will never guarantee that content submitted by any author will be published.

Please note that we are a non-profit organization so we cannot lobby and that includes articles in the Bulletin. We can and want to inform our members about health-related policy and issues, but we cannot ask them to engage. It will also be stated that statements and conclusions of authors that are published are solely those of the author and do not reflect those of the Indianapolis Medical Society policy or position.

Our editorial and special feature articles are typically 600 to 1,000 words. The deadline is the 5th of the month that we are running the magazine, i.e. June's edition is due June 5th, but earlier is always appreciated. Articles should be emailed, preferably in Word format and including a title, to me, Morgan Perrill, editor, at mperrill@indymedicalsociety.org before the deadline with the understanding that your article may not be published in that month's edition.

Please include a headshot, preferably in color, of the author and the author's title. I can include additional supporting materials such as graphs, graphics, images, etc., so feel free to include in a Word, Pdf, jpg, or png file large enough.

As editor, I take creative license with the layout and photos. Of course, your input is always appreciated. However, I will not change or edit your content without prior consent. If you decide to participate, I will send you at least one copies of the final version, if you do not already receive one, but you can request more which we will provide if able. Please provide an address of where you like this sent.

All of our past Bulletins are posted online HERE if you would like to see some examples. Please let me know if you have any additional questions.
